I have learned the secret

Saint Paul certainly had a varied life with its ups and downs. He provoked strong feelings in others. Some almost adored him--others tried to kill him. He was feaster and starved. His life reflects the extremes that many people go through; usually on a smaller scale. He gives us a vital secret how to survive these peaks and valleys. He becomes all things to all people. He can do this because of his total confidence in Jesus. He can do everything with and through Christ. It's a lesson worth learning.
