Do Not Prevent Him

Peter complains to Jesus about an outsider who is working miracles in Christ's name. Our Lord is not mad. He points out that anyone who is not against him is really with him. This is a lesson in tolerance that we should apply to anyone who doesn't think or believe the same that we do. (Fr. Lonsdale Commentaries & Clip-Art)

Standing (Romano Guardini "Signs")

The respect we owe to the infinite God requires of us a bearing suited to such a presence. The sense that we have of the greatness of His being, and, in His eyes, of the slightness of our own, is shown outwardly by our kneeling down to make ourselves small. But reverence has another way of expressing itself. When you are sitting down to rest or chat, and someone to whom you owe respect comes in and turns to speak to you, at once you stand up and remain standing so long as he is speaking and you are answering him. Why do we do this? To stand up means that we are in possession of ourselves. Instead of sitting relaxed and at ease we take hold of ourselves; we stand, as it were, at attention, geared and ready for action. A man on his feet can come or go at once. He can take an order on the instant, or carry out an assignment the moment he is shown what is wanted. Standing is the other side of reverence toward God. Kneeling is the side of worship in rest and quietness; standing is the side of vigilance and action. It is the respect of the servant in attendance, of the soldier on duty. When the good news of the gospel is proclaimed, we stand up. Godparents stand when in the child's place they make the solemn profession of faith; children when they renew these promises at their first communion. Bridegroom and bride stand when they bind themselves at the altar to be faithful to their marriage vow. On these and the like occasions we stand up. Even when we are praying alone, to pray standing may more forcibly express our inward state. The early Christians stood by preference. The "Orante," in the familiar catacomb representation, stands in her long flowing robes of a woman of rank and prays with outstretched hands, in perfect freedom, perfect obedience, quietly attending to the word, and in readiness to perform it with joy. We may feel at times a sort of constraint in kneeling. One feels freer standing up, and in that case standing is the right position. But stand up straight: not leaning, both feet on the ground, the knees firm, not slackly bent, upright, in control. Prayer made thus is both free and obedient, both reverent and serviceable. Rosary Coast to Coast Canada

Sunday, October 7, 2018 8:00 am to 5:00 pm

The faithful at a number of parishes in the Archdiocese of Toronto will be praying the Rosary on October 7, as part of a nationwide initiative by Children of the Eucharist Canada in partnership with Fr. Rick Heilman. Rosary Coast to Coast is inspired by the Rosary on the Border in Poland and the Rosary on the Coast in both Ireland and the UK. We are inviting Catholics across the country to pray together to call upon God through the powerful intercession of Our Lady of the Rosary to heal our country and return it to Holiness. The National Rosary Rally in Toronto will take place in the following locations. All will gather for a blessing in Toronto at The Newman Centre at 3 pm to pray the Divine Mercy which will be followed by a walking Rosary procession to Queens Park ending with Mass at St Michael's Cathedral at 5 p.m. The Rosary Rally will be live-streamed. Other participating parishes in our region include: St. John the Evangelist, Weston; St. Timothy's, North York; St. Francis of Assisi, Mississauga; and Holy Spirit, Barrie. For other locations please check Rosary Coast to Coast Canada Website. All Canadians are invited to pray the Rosary Coast to Coast wherever they can gather: in parishes Churches; in front of city government buildings, schools, along the Canadian coasts and borders; as families; or while viewing the live-stream of the National Rosary Rally.
